From Amsterdam to Cobble Hill by Bike

Nicole Tung for The New York Times

By DENNY LEE
Published: June 30, 2010

WHEN it comes to biking, New York is no Amsterdam. But that hasn't stopped Ad Hereijgers, an urban planner from the Netherlands, from opening a Euro-style bicycle store in Cobble Hill, Brooklyn, that specializes in Dutch imports. That includes sturdy cargo and commuter bicycles by De Fietsfabriek (from $1,500) and Dutch ID (from $1,400), as well as hard-to-find accessories like a rubber bell ($2.50) and Bobike child seats ($215). "The bike store is a spin-off of our urban planning activities," said Mr. Hereijgers, who divides his time between Amsterdam and Brooklyn. He plans to add film screenings, book readings and other bike-related events. Rolling Orange, 269 Baltic Street (Court Street), (718) 935-0695 or rollingorangebikes.com.
